I am still waiting to hear from someone regarding transition into year 5 for Henry and going forward with any support for him, he still struggles in areas and I am thinking about his future schooling and making sure things are in place for him. It seems that because he 'copes' he is looked upon as doing ok, but he does have an autism diagnosis and I feel he could be doing a lot better in areas with some extra support, rather than being left to get on with it and not fully understanding what is asked of him.
